The Technology People Problem

The technology people problem manifests itself in several ways:

* Lack of Skilled Professionals: The demand for skilled technology professionals far exceeds the supply, making it difficult for organizations to find and hire qualified candidates. * High Turnover Rates: Technology professionals are highly sought after, leading to high turnover rates. This can disrupt projects and create knowledge gaps within organizations. * Skills Gap: The rapid pace of technological advancements means that professionals need to continuously update their skills to stay relevant. This can create a skills gap that organizations struggle to fill.
