The Battle of Cliffview is a large-scale PvP battleground that is located in the Cutlass Keys region of Aeternum. The battleground can accommodate up to 100 players per side, and players will be able to choose from a variety of weapons and abilities to use in battle.

The battleground features a variety of objectives to complete, including capturing control points, destroying enemy structures, and killing the enemy commander. The first team to complete all of the objectives, or the team with the most points at the end of the match, will win the battle.

The Battle of Cliffview is a fast-paced and action-packed battleground that is sure to provide players with an unforgettable gaming experience. The battleground is a great way to test your skills against other players and to earn rewards for your efforts.

How to Play The Battle of Cliffview

To play The Battle of Cliffview, you must first create a character in New World and reach level 20. Once you have reached level 20, you can queue for the battleground through the PvP menu. You can queue for the battleground solo or as part of a group.

Once you have queued for the battleground, you will be placed in a lobby with other players. The lobby will display the current queue time and the number of players in the queue. Once the queue time has expired, you will be teleported to the battleground.

When you enter the battleground, you will be given a set of weapons and abilities to use. You can choose from a variety of weapons, including swords, axes, bows, and muskets. You can also choose from a variety of abilities, including healing spells, damage buffs, and crowd control abilities.

Once you have chosen your weapons and abilities, you will be placed on a team. The teams will be randomly assigned, and you will not be able to choose which team you are on.

The goal of The Battle of Cliffview is to complete all of the objectives before the other team. The objectives are located throughout the battleground, and they include capturing control points, destroying enemy structures, and killing the enemy commander.

To capture a control point, you must stand within the capture zone for a period of time. Once the capture zone has been captured, your team will gain points. You can lose control of a capture zone if the enemy team captures it.

To destroy an enemy structure, you must attack it with your weapons. Enemy structures include towers, walls, and gates. Once an enemy structure has been destroyed, your team will gain points.

To kill the enemy commander, you must first find him. The enemy commander is a powerful NPC that is located in the enemy base. Once you have found the enemy commander, you must attack him with your weapons. Once the enemy commander has been killed, your team will win the battle.
