The Arrival of the Spanish

The Spanish first arrived in the Americas in the early 16th century. They were looking for gold and silver, and they were eager to expand their empire. In 1519, a group of Spanish conquistadors led by Hernán Cortés landed on the coast of what is now Mexico. They quickly made their way to the Aztec capital of Tenochtitlan, where they were met with a mixed reception.

Some of the Aztecs welcomed the Spanish as potential allies. Others were more suspicious, and they feared that the Spanish were planning to conquer their empire. Cortés and his men played on these fears, and they eventually succeeded in turning the Aztecs against each other.
