May was devastated by her husband's death, but she knew that she had to be strong for her children. She sold their home and moved to a small cottage in the countryside. May raised her children and worked hard to make ends meet.

In 1927, May's life took a dramatic turn. She was contacted by a group of people who were interested in building a "House of Lifetime" for her. The House of Lifetime was a unique concept, a home that would be built by volunteers and donated to a family in need.

May was hesitant at first, but she eventually agreed to the project. The House of Lifetime was built on a piece of land that May owned in the countryside. The house was a simple, one-story structure, but it was well-built and comfortable.

May moved into the House of Lifetime in 1928. She lived there for the rest of her life, and she became a beloved member of the community. May was a kind and generous woman, and she always had a smile on her face.

May Savidge died in 1975 at the age of 95. She was a remarkable woman who lived an extraordinary life. She was a loving mother, a devoted friend, and a generous neighbor. May Savidge's legacy lives on in the House of Lifetime, a home that has provided shelter and comfort to families in need for over 90 years.

The House of Lifetime

The House of Lifetime is a unique concept, a home that is built by volunteers and donated to a family in need. The first House of Lifetime was built in 1927 for May Savidge. Since then, over 100 Houses of Lifetime have been built in the United States and Canada.

The House of Lifetime is a simple, one-story structure, but it is well-built and comfortable. The house typically has three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a kitchen, a living room, and a dining room. The house is also equipped with a washer and dryer, a refrigerator, a stove, and a microwave.

Families who are selected to receive a House of Lifetime are typically low-income families who are struggling to make ends meet. The families are nominated by social service agencies, and they are selected based on their need and their willingness to volunteer in the community.

The House of Lifetime is a gift that can change a family's life. The house provides a safe and stable home for the family, and it also gives them a sense of pride and accomplishment. The families who receive a House of Lifetime are grateful for the opportunity to own a home, and they are committed to giving back to their community.
