The manual was divided into six sections, each of which covered a different topic. The first section, "Shipboard Safety," provided information on preventing and responding to accidents on board ship. The second section, "First Aid," provided instructions on how to treat common injuries and illnesses. The third section, "Navigation," provided basic information on how to navigate a ship. The fourth section, "Seamanship," provided instructions on how to operate a ship's sails, rigging, and equipment. The fifth section, "Ship Maintenance," provided information on how to maintain a ship's hull, machinery, and electrical systems. The sixth section, "Appendix," contained a variety of useful information, such as a glossary of nautical terms and a list of distress signals.

Significance of the Manual
