The Players

The Dream Team was assembled by USA Basketball in order to compete in the 1992 Olympics. The team was coached by Chuck Daly, and it featured 11 NBA players and one college player, Christian Laettner.

The roster of the Dream Team was as follows:

- Michael Jordan
- Magic Johnson
- Larry Bird
- Charles Barkley
- Karl Malone
- John Stockton
- Patrick Ewing
- David Robinson
- Scottie Pippen
- Chris Mullin
- Christian Laettner

The Dream Team was a truly international squad. The players came from all over the United States, and they represented a wide range of backgrounds. However, they all shared a common goal: to win the gold medal at the Olympics.

The Journey

The Dream Team's journey to the Olympics was not without its challenges. The team had to overcome a number of obstacles, including injuries and off-court distractions.

One of the biggest challenges for the Dream Team was the fact that they had to learn how to play together as a team. The players were all used to being the stars of their own teams, and they had to adjust to playing with each other.

Another challenge for the Dream Team was the pressure to win. The team was expected to win the gold medal, and they knew that anything less would be considered a failure.

Despite the challenges, the Dream Team persevered. They learned how to play together as a team, and they developed a strong chemistry on and off the court.

The Dream

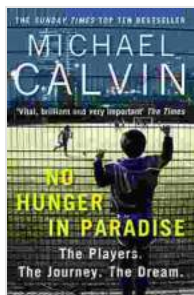

The Dream Team's dream of winning the gold medal at the Olympics came true in Barcelona. The team dominated the competition, winning all eight of their games by an average of 44 points.

The Dream Team's victory was a source of great pride for the United States. The team represented the best that the country had to offer, and they inspired a generation of basketball players.

The Dream Team's legacy continues to this day. The team is still considered one of the greatest sports teams in history, and their success continues to inspire basketball players around the world.
