- Attention

It is important to note that not all mass murderers are motivated by the same factors. Some may be motivated by a single factor, while others may be motivated by a combination of factors.

Personality Traits

Mass murderers often share certain personality traits, including:

- Antisocial personality disorder
- Narcissistic personality disorder
- Psychopathy
- Sadism
- Aggression
- Impulsivity
- Lack of empathy

It is important to note that not all mass murderers have these personality traits. However, these traits are often present in mass murderers.

Mental Health Issues

Many mass murderers have mental health issues, including:

- Depression
- Anxiety
- Bipolar disorder
- Schizophrenia
- Post-traumatic stress disorder

It is important to note that not all mass murderers have mental health issues. However, these issues are often present in mass murderers.

The unexamined life of a mass murderer is a complex and disturbing one. There is no single motive that drives all mass murderers, and there is no single personality trait or mental health issue that is common to all mass murderers. However, by examining the psychological profile of mass murderers, we can gain a better understanding of what drives them to commit such heinous acts of violence.
